

PRESENTATION

The second issue of the institutional magazine; AHEAD/ADELANTE, was created as a result of democratizing access to a methodical production and of helping the dissemination of said research, that is fundamental and it aims to promote the alliance of research through the knowledge of those results. It is therefore a strategy to allow the dissemination of knowledge from different cultural content and consolidate a reflective dialogue between the experiences of classroom teachers and the work of researchers.

The editorial project “AHEAD/ADELANTE” began in 2010 with an aggregate differential that stands out as a bilingual magazine; in English and Spanish, which gives an international connotation; it invites researchers and practitioners to contribute their work, empirical or theoretical, on any of the many areas that constitute the academy through this emerging publication and it is designed to serve as a vehicle of communication of scientific papers that aim relations between research and teaching. Its organizational structure consists mainly of researchers; since it is a scientific journal, in source, must be rooted in the research community that has the intellectual and relevant contributions on the subject within their respective institutions.

The magazine has been collecting a series of articles and other contributions which may constitute new influences, the result of research or new ideas, also published and unpublished writings of authors who have something substantive to say in this area of the connection between scientific disciplines, both in theory and in practice.

I want to thank the authors from different disciplines that have been working and enriching the contents of the first two editions of the magazine and the Editorial Committee for their dedicated work. To the readers of the magazine; I hope you enjoy it in its full context.
